

Cookies Policy

Like many companies, 10TradeFX uses cookies on this site.

The 10TradeFX cookie policy provides the user with information on which cookies are set when you visit 10TradeFX website and how to reject or delete those cookies.

Cookies are pieces of information shared between your web browser and a website. Use of cookies enables a faster and easier experience for the user. A cookie cannot read data off your computer's hard drive

Cookies are created by the websites you visit which use cookies and are small text files placed on your computer or by certain emails which you open. Cookies are used to improve user experience, make the website work, enable site security and provide the business with marketing information about the site's visitors.

For the most part a cookie will contain a string that contains information about the browser. To work, a cookie does not need to know where you are from, it only needs to remember your browser. Some websites do use cookies to store more personal information about you.

Cookies are messages that webservers pass to your web browser when you visit internet sites. Your browser stores each message in a small file called cookie.txt. When you request another page from the server your browser sends the cookie back to the server.

Cookies are a powerful tool because they allow web developers to easily perform long term user recognition. One widespread use of cookies is the ability of a website such as Hotmail to retain its user's login information.

The single most important job of a cookie is to keep a user logged as they browse from page to page. A user's browsing history becomes part of a database which the website then uses to improve customers experience. They give websites the ability to remember and improve.

The Cookie text files comprise numbers and letters. The cookie files are saved into special areas in the memory of your computer or mobile device. Cookies stored here are called session cookies with cookies placed into the hard drive called persistent cookies. You can remove persistent cookies by following directions provided in your Internet browser's 'Help' file.

There are different kinds of cookies with different functions:

1. Session cookies: These are only stored on your computer during your web session. They are automatically deleted when the browser is closed. They usually store an anonymous session ID allowing you to browse a website without having to log in to each page. They do not collect any information from your computer.

2. Persistent cookies: these usually have an expiration date far into the future and thus stay in your browser until they expire, or until you manually delete them. An example of how we use persistent cookies is for functionalities like the "Stay logged in" tick box. We also use persistent cookies to better understand usage patterns so we can improve the site for our customers. This information is anonymised - when we look at the data, in other words, we look at patterns, but we do not see individuals' personally identified information (PII).
3. Analytical cookies: collect visitor information, such as the number of visits, how our website was found, from where the visit came from, if via a marketing campaign etc. This information is extremely important to the business and helps us improve our website and further enhance visitor experience.
4. Functional cookies: are specifically about visitor experience on the website. For example, they 'remember' the open/closed status of pop up messages, what time zone or view state was set for the Economic Calendar, enabling access to information stored when registered with 10TradeFX and so on. Without these functional cookies, no settings information can be saved.
5. Third Party cookies: are set by other websites who place cookies on the user's computer. The "3rd party" cookies are placed when you are logged into their service, and 10TradeFX does not control the dissemination of these cookies. These cookies are session, analytical and functional, and determine if the user is logged into a social network already, and control bookmarking or sharing 10TradeFX content.

How 10TradeFX uses cookies:

For the purpose of enhancing our services to our clients and potential clients we, at 10TradeFX use a number of cookies in a very restrictive, simplicity form, in order to facilitate our clients in the process of completing an application for the use of our services and/or for updating their personal profile.

Moreover, 10TradeFX website, uses cookies to provide the functionality you need to browse our site correctly. 10TradeFX website issues cookies upon landing on our website, unless the user has changed cookie settings in their browser to refuse cookies.
